

The Barcelona Clúster Nàutic promotes employment with the launch of a job search platform

Members of the association can find the most suitable profiles for their vacancies with the new powerful tool

The Barcelona Clúster Nàutic has become a reference for the nautical sector and the marine industry in Barcelona, also on employment issues, for those looking for work and for companies that have vacancies. Promoting quality employment, one of the founding objectives of the association, has been materialized with some contracts that have been carried out through the new Cluster job platform.

One of the missions of the cluster is to help creating quality jobs, and therefore one of the actions carried out is channeling industry demands to schools, so that they can train workers needed by the marine industry in Barcelona, characterized by specialization. The new Institute of Nautical Studies of Barcelona has been launched in September 2015, with 184 students studying sports education and vocational training on boat maintenance and electrical and communication systems on ships.

Now the Barcelona Clúster Nàutic has improved the job opportunities section online, which includes a public section where job offers are published, and a private platform, reserved for partners and collaborators, including CV of some sixty professionals.

The platform includes a powerful search engine by keyword or keywords corresponding to the studies, languages, professional profile and sector or sectors in which the candidate has worked. Thus, the partners that have a vacancy can easily find the candidate that best fits the desired profile.

Several human resource agencies have already contacted the cluster to find profiles for their job offers.

Those interested in including their CV in the Barcelona Clúster Nàutic job platform can send it in PDF format to comunicacio@barcelonaclusternautic.cat
